

To all of Intertech's valued customers, vendors, and partners,

We want to update you with some exciting news.

Today, we publicly announced a significant step in the future of our company.

Intertech has merged with Fedora Security to become Fedora Intertech.

What does this mean to you? It means good things for everyone we work with because the reason for the merger is to bring better service, a broader reach, and more solutions to our customers.

The new company's merger of capabilities, skills and expertise from both existing companies gives the new, stronger entity opportunities to better serve our valued customers.

Fedora Security (Fedora) is a global provider of video systems, UL and The Monitoring Association Five Diamond certified monitoring, and security management tools used in multiple industries, particularly construction. Based in Charlotte, NC with an additional office in Tel Aviv, Israel, Fedora brings innovative in-house solutions to the security technology community.

For Intertech, Fedora offers new opportunities in additional industries and locations looking for an expert systems integrator. Fedora also brings an innovative approach to management of security systems that enables Intertech to increase its unique value above other systems integrators.

We are fortunate to work in a growing industry and with customers, vendors, and partners like you.

We are also fortunate to have talented, dedicated team members from both companies who will now work together to bring all those skills to the new Fedora Intertech.

This merger of complementary businesses creates a company with the combined talent and solid financial footing to orient us toward a greater vision.

That vision is to be recognized as a leading security and systems provider implementing best of breed technology, innovating valuable solutions and serving as a trusted partner to our customers while having the best working environment.
